LARGEST CLASS IN HISTORY GRADUATES!

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

"JUMPERS"

"If you love those who love you, what credit is that to you?
For even sinners love those who love them.

And if you do good to those who do good to you,
What credit is that to you? For even sinners do the same.

And if you lend to those from whom you hope to receive,
What credit is that to you?
Even sinners lend to sinners, to receive as much again.

But love your enemies, and do good, and lend, expecting nothing in return, and your reward will be great,

And you will be sons of the Most High;
for he is kind to the ungrateful and the selfish."

Tom Stoppard's latest play, now running in New York after great success in London and Washington, opens up a small volume of questions about our society and its institutions -- most especially, the colleges!

"Jumpers" is at times uproariously funny, particularly to an academic person with some background in philosophy and in faculty politics.

Mr. Brian Bedford appears in a striped purple muffler -- shabby cap -- sagging sweater -- and apparently opaque eyeglasses. Blinded by thought, cheered by theorem, he is ready to conclude that everything can at least be reduced to either mysticism or a positively staggering banality. The first word that he utters is "Secondly!"

One is reminded of Harpo Marx, Harpo not Karl, who once opened a political speech with those two splendid words, "In conclusion."

It is an apt joke here. The whole drift of Mr. Stoppard's charade here is that all premises to everything have now vanished. Nothing can be posited. Mr. Bedford (the philosophy professor) will not even posit a God who does not exist.

Motives don't exist: look for one when murder is done in the play, and you will find the murder but not the malice.

A professor can be shot, a man left on the moon, a rabbit speared quite by accident in the cupboard.

Cause is missing along with the Ten Commandments (at least the eighth commandment, as the wife's behavior with a fellow professor makes clear). And all that is left is the athletic gyrations of the intellect as it turns over and over and over on itself, in midair, tipping on its ungrounded nimbleness.

DR. RALPH C. GEIGLE '31, 1974 Outstanding Alumnus, has the medal for outstanding service to education he received earlier in the day from Susquehanna University admired by Mrs. Geigle and President Hutson along with the Lycoming Chair which was a part of Lycoming College's recognition of Dr. Geigle's outstanding achievements.

RALPH C. GEIGLE, Class of 1931, is the 1974 recipient of the Outstanding Alumnus Award presented at the annual alumni banquet held Saturday of Commencement/Alumni Weekend. Dr. Geigle, a long time Berks County educator, will retire in June as superintendent of the Reading School District, a post he has held since 1956.

President Hutson presented the Trevorton native with his second award of the day: earlier in the day Dr. Geigle had been recognized by the Susquehanna University Alumni Association for outstanding achievement in the field of education. After graduating from Dickinson Junior College (now Lycoming College), Dr. Geigle continued his education at Susquehanna where he received his bachelor of arts.

Dr. Geigle earned his master of arts in education from Columbia University and a doctor of education from George Washington University. Susquehanna has conferred an honorary doctor of pedagogy upon him. Last year a $7,500,000 physical education-classroom complex in Reading was named the "Ralph C. Geigle Educational Complex".

Dr. Geigle has participated in three international study missions of the American Association of School Administrators and has written numerous articles on education. He also has been active in community organizations.

Also participating in the dinner program were George A. Nichols, alumni president, Dr. James R. Jose, dean of the college, and Dr. Victor B. Hann, recipient of the 1971 Outstanding Alumnus Award, who presented his 1924 graduation "sheepskin" to the College for its archives.

The banquet climaxed the annual Alumni Day activities which included class reunions, a LYCOMING'S LARGEST GRADUATING CLASS in its history received their degrees at the 126th Annual Commencement held at 2 P.M. Sunday, May 5th on the campus quad. Baccalaureate had been held that morning in the First United Methodist Church at Market and Packer Streets.

President Harold H. Hutson conferred bachelors degrees on 382 seniors presented by Dean of the College, James R. Jose, who also introduced honor students. Fred A. Pennington, chairman of the board of trustees and Leslie H. Ergott, a senior, gave the invocation and benediction, respectively.

Highest academic honors were shared by four students with perfect 4.0 averages. The Summa Cum Laude graduates were Helene L. Boinski, of Blossburg; Barry P. Dawson, of Industry; Christine D. Smith, of Forestville, New York, and Andrew C. Stack of Williamsport.

business meeting, and election of officers, craft demonstrations, planetarium shows, and the annual choir concert.

Mr. Nichols, of Clarks Summit, was re-elected president. Others named included Col. Marshall Sanders, of McLean, Virginia as vice president, Mrs. Forrest Birkenstock Breitenbach, of Williamsport, as recording secretary; Mrs. Keigh Cronauer Strauser, of Montoursville, as corresponding secretary; and Tom Decker, of State College, as treasurer.

Members named to three-year terms on the alumni executive board include John B. Ernst - Doylestown, Mrs. Beth Mueser Snee - Washington, Pa., Donald E. Failor - Camp Hill, John R. Bigger - Allentown, Mrs. Marjorie Sundin Peterson - Allentown, David L. Johnson - Montoursville, Dr. Mary R. Schelkle - Williamsport.

WHEREAS Loring B. Priest has completed 25 years of service to Lycoming College and to Dickinson Junior College and is retiring as of June 30, 1974.

BE IT RESOLVED that the Alumni Association of Lycoming College expresses its sincere thanks to Dr. Priest for his dedication to our alma mater and her students and wishes him much happiness in his retirement years.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that alumni and friends be urged to contribute to the established "Loring B. Priest Library."

("The Loring B. Priest Library shall be a special collection of books, noted by bookplate, in the Lycoming College Library, with special attention to books in the fields of History and the Humanities.")

DR. LORING B. PRIEST, retiring professor of history, receives the 1974 Lycoming College Alumni Association Achievement Award from Kelgh Cronauer Strauser '59, Alumni Board member and Loring's close friend.

ALUMNI REUNION

The whole play takes its title, "Jumpers", from the acrobatic pyramids staged by members of a university faculty who are putting on an annual entertainment. The occasion is visually teasing. Against a horizon turned sheer silver, acrobats in yellow tights and tasseled mortarboards build unstable pyramids, while an orchestra that has lost its singer goes on and on and on.

A redhead performs a strip-tease while swinging from a chandelier (an academic can immediately think of many university parallels for this one!). One of the tumblers (read faculty here), is shot in the back (again university parallels), blown right out of the heart of his pyramid.

While on this side of the stage the philosopher tries to find some premise which doesn't require three additional premises to support it, adultery (under the pleasant guise of counseling) goes on to the left hand side of the stage.

"Jumpers" -- how to reach conclusions by jumping from one shaky assumption to another -- how to throw away what you have before you have something to replace it.

Fort matley or unfortunately -- the play is not all tin, because the main drift of "Jumpers" leaves us uncomfortable about ourselves and our society. Two of the main items in the history of ethical thought are clearly illustrated -- the process of socialization and that of individualization.

The history of society shows that, all too often in the past, society has taken precedence, too much precedence, over the individual. But today, I think, we are aware that the rights and privileges of the individual are, in all questions, right, and the rights and privileges of society are, in too many cases, regarded as wrong.

Society's rights and privileges, in the eyes of many observers, are getting short shrift. Some societal scholars frankly conclude that we are rapidly cannibalizing our institutions -- eating them up while we depend upon them for the very individual rights that we stress.

We who have grown up in the church, for instance, want all of our individual rights and behavior patterns. We increasingly reject any demands which the church makes upon our individual behavior.

We who earn our daily bread at colleges and universities show little concern for the rights of the institution, slightly more for our disciplines, and most of all for our individual life styles.

Government at all levels is now clearly used simply and solely as a guarantor of individual rights and freedoms.

GRADUATION 1974

No. 1 - SENIORS enter the Quad through gate.

No. 2 - JOHN F. STEINLE, senior class president, receives diploma and congratulations from President Hutson.

No. 3 - THE BRUNGARD ALUMNI CHAPTER was increased by one with Thomas C's graduation as an English major. Pauline Pribble Brungard and Kenneth R. Brungard started the family chapter when they both earned degrees in 1950.

No. 4 - NANCY J. LYNN, a sociology/anthropology major from Florence, New Jersey, was warmly applauded as Marshal John G. Hollenback assisted her in receiving her degree and congratulations from Dr. Hutson.

Is it any wonder that some leaders are saying, perhaps too blatantly, that the rights of the criminal are carefully protected while the rights of society are seldom considered?

Should we really, down in the depths of our own consciences, stand up and condemn and take a gleeful delight in the moral plight of leaders in high places in our government, when we in the same place would often stress our own individual right to get elected, no matter what the cost, or to make a buck? And in our own lives, too often these come above societal concepts of honor, loyalty, and decency.

How shall we still manage to live, as individuals, when we shall have completed the eating up of our society and its institutions? Perhaps, in the mood of "Jumpers," we are adulterating our society on one side of the stage while we carry forward our philosophical discussions of individual rights on the other.

Perhaps playwright Stoppard is entirely correct in introducing his play with a nude woman swinging across the stage on a chandelier. In our fear of absolutes, we have stripped down to an indefinable yet titillating "life-style" morality. We fear the word "morality" because it suggests societal experience. We jump like maniacs from one situational ethical analysis to another -- we can't even define "secondly", because we have no valid "firstly".

Thus, it truly doesn't make any modern sense to hear the ancient religious absolute.

"Love your enemies,
And do good, and lend,
Expecting nothing in return,
And your reward will be great,
For you will be sons of the Most High.

For he is kind to the ungrateful and the selfish."

But then, religion never was intended to make life easy; it was intended to make human beings and societies great.

CLASS news

Edited by DALE V. BOWEN '59

1923

BERNADINE DECKER NANCARROW reports that she has received letters from two of her classmates and has furnished the following information to the Alumni Office.

ROBERT CROYLE is living in Bloomsburg, Pa. He says, "I don't go as I used to. I really get out a great deal, am able to go to church every Sunday, except when the weather is extreme. I preach about 25 times a year, have my church school class, there in weddings, funerals and baptisms, operate "listening ear" for this section - five counties - have some counseling calls through the church and elsewhere, so I really lead a rather active life, but I must depend on some men who are knowledgeable and strong and whose time is not otherwise committed. I hope you can understand my hesitancy to plan to go places where there are stairs, unfamiliar and sometimes impossible facilities." He invites classmates and friends to stop by to visit him.

P. GORDON GOULD is serving as Assistant to the President of Alaska Methodist University for church relations. As such he is endeavoring to help United Methodist people and others to really see Alaska Methodist University as strategically located in Alaska and fitted to meet Alaska's present needs, and uniquely programmed academically to be relevant to the unfolding opportunities Alaska's future offers. The Gould's have three sons ARDELL '49 and GORDON '51, both ministers in the Western New York Conference and ROBERT '59, a director of social work and Associate Professor at Temple University Hospital. The Gould's live in Wallingford, Pa.

EDWARD H. REDFORD has been appointed pastor of International Protestant Church of Christian and Missionary Alliance in Saigon, South Viet Nam. His parents report that he will be there at least three years.

1949

ROBERT H. MILLER has been named Staff Vice President and General Manager of Acme Markets' Skyline Distributors, at Lancaster. Bob has been with Acme since 1949. With his wife, Edna, and their two children, he lives at Abaco, Lancaster County.

1950

BURRITT E. SWEET has been appointed superintendent of the Onondaga District of the Wyoming annual conference, United Methodist Church. Burr had been pastor of the Boulevard United Methodist Church in Birmingham. He assumes his new duties in early June.

1955

ELMER C. CONEY is working as an industrial engineer with The Pittsburgh Company, Stoneware Division, in York, Pa. Elmer and his family live in York.

THOMAS D. SPITLER has been named manager-production administration and control for the Circuit Model Operation of CTE Sylva, Inc. Tom and his wife, the former DONNA EITEL '54, have been living in Warren, Ohio, where he was affiliated with General Motors Corporation. They will be living in Mountville.

I. STEPHEN ZIEGLER received his Ph.D. from the University of Pittsburgh in Counseling Psychology in December of 1972. His master's was earned at Duquesne University. Steve is now working for the State of Alabama in the Department of Mental Health and is living in Gadsden, Alabama.

JAMES H. SLAPINSKI who has been serving the Boy Scouts of America in a professional capacity for the past seven years is now the District Executive for the Prince William District of the National Capital Area Council. Jim, his wife, Jo, and three daughters now reside near the Manassas National Battlefield, Manassas, Virginia, A Washington suburb. The girls are also the proud granddaughters of a nearly two year old grandson. Their four children recently bonned them on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary.

CARLOS C. and NANCY (WITTMAN) JAYNE are living in Des Moines, Iowa. Nancy has been active with her church and was one of the chaperones to accompany their church youth choir on a singing tour of England. She helped the youth in their project to raise $40,000 to finance the trip. Carl is the group bond manager with Statesman Group Insurance. Carl and Nancy have three children, ages 16, 14 and 10.

GEORGE C. SCHLESINGER is serving as pastor of First United Methodist Church, Weatfield, N.J. He had previously served at Wesley United Methodist Church in Edison, N.J.

1961

JERRY PENNO, special assistant to the vice chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, in Washington, D.C., recently spoke at the Society for the Advancement of Management, Lancaster, Pa. Her topic was "Safe Products For The Consumer." Jerry holds a master's degree in Public Administration from Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University. She is a graduate of NASA's first Management Systems class. She was the youngest person to attend the Federal Executive Institute. She has also served in the Peace Corps, the Office of Economic Opportunity and the Department of Commerce.

CARL L. REANIS has joined the Grisinger Medical Center permanent staff as an associate in the department of otolaryngology. Carl earned his medical degree from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia and served as flight surgeon for two years in the U. S. Air Force. He is living in Danville.

DAVID A. KELLER has been working on a thesis concerning the relation of churches to mobile-home residents. His thesis is being written for his doctor of ministry degree from the Consortium for Higher Education in Columbus, Ohio. The thrust of his study was to find out how ministers can get mobile-home residents to have closer ties with the churches, and he believes this may be the first study of this type ever undertaken. Dave is serving as pastor of Hesdon Park United Methodist Church, north of Williamsport.

THOMAS J. GALEN has been named Director/Coordinator-Eabler of the Southern New England Conference Council on Ministries. He assumed his duties on June 1.
